The Colorful Year

We students will long remember the colorful events marking the 1963-1964 school term. Exciting sports events, daily classes, friendly acquaintances, and dreamy prom will all grow mellow in our memories. We'll always remember Alvero Sanchez and Miss Acosta, our visitors from South America. Who can forget our school's first Hootenanny and the faculty chorus singing "Tom Dooley?" There were other special events that we will review in our memories: the majorettes' winning second place in a contest at the Johnstown War Memorial, the Science Club's Second Annual Science Fair, and the music department's spring concerts. We will also remember the many assemblies: Hal Harrison's "The Sylvan Trails," Student Council's induction, and the Mixed Chorus' human Christmas tree at the holiday assembly. Most of all we will remember and cherish the warm human moments that brighten the drudgery of the average school week: preparing Thanksgiving baskets for underpriviledged families, serving coffee and doughnuts at a faculty meeting, and being together for school parties at the year's end.

Along with these things we students of 1963-1964 will remember the fads that swept the school and the nation. We'll remember the Beatles - their "Mersey sound" and moppy haircuts. At MCJHS we had kissing chains and stringing. Those corny elephant jokes will never be forgotten:

How can you tell if there's an elephant in your refrigerator?

You can see his footprints in the jelly.

We'll recall, too, girls wearing A-line skirts with straps and dancing the monkey with boys who wear elbow patches on their sweaters. All these fads will be remembered by the teens of 1963-1964.

Besides the special events and crazes which have colored the school year, we will remember, too, the daily routines and everyday happenings. Class lectures, lunch lines, and crowded halls will remain in our memories. Seniors will remember studying Macbeth, the chemistry classes will remember "The Preparation and Properties of Oxygen," and juniors - history notebooks and the IDE'S. Students will remember notebooks, notebooks, and more notebooks - history notebooks, reading notebooks, and Latin derivative notebooks. Others will recall speed tests and physical fitness tests. All will remember doing stacks of homework. Tucked away in another pocket of our minds will be other treasures-the warm glow of friends in high school.

The ever-shifting kaleidoscope of events around the world and across America affect our lives here at MCJHS, too. The struggle against Communism erupts in an ugly scar in South Viet Nam and American soldiers, our friends and neighbors, rush to the scene to protect the cause of freedom. A young and energetic President dies - target of an assassin's bullet - and we mourn with the rest of the world. A partial test-ban treaty is signed and we too breathe more easily.

Various school organizations help the cause of peace: The National Honor Society supports a young lad in Korea, the College Club sent books to the Asian nation of Malaysia, and Junior Red Cross collected "Big G's" to help deprived Children.

The year of 1963-1964 was indeed a colorful year. We will remember always the fads, the friends, and the fun of this year. Daily Routines - cafeteria lines, crowded school buses, and class lectures; Special Events - games and matches, dances, and assemblies; Global Happenings - leaders' meetings, new laws, and the assassination of the President all these will affect our lives as we recollect them in the coming years.

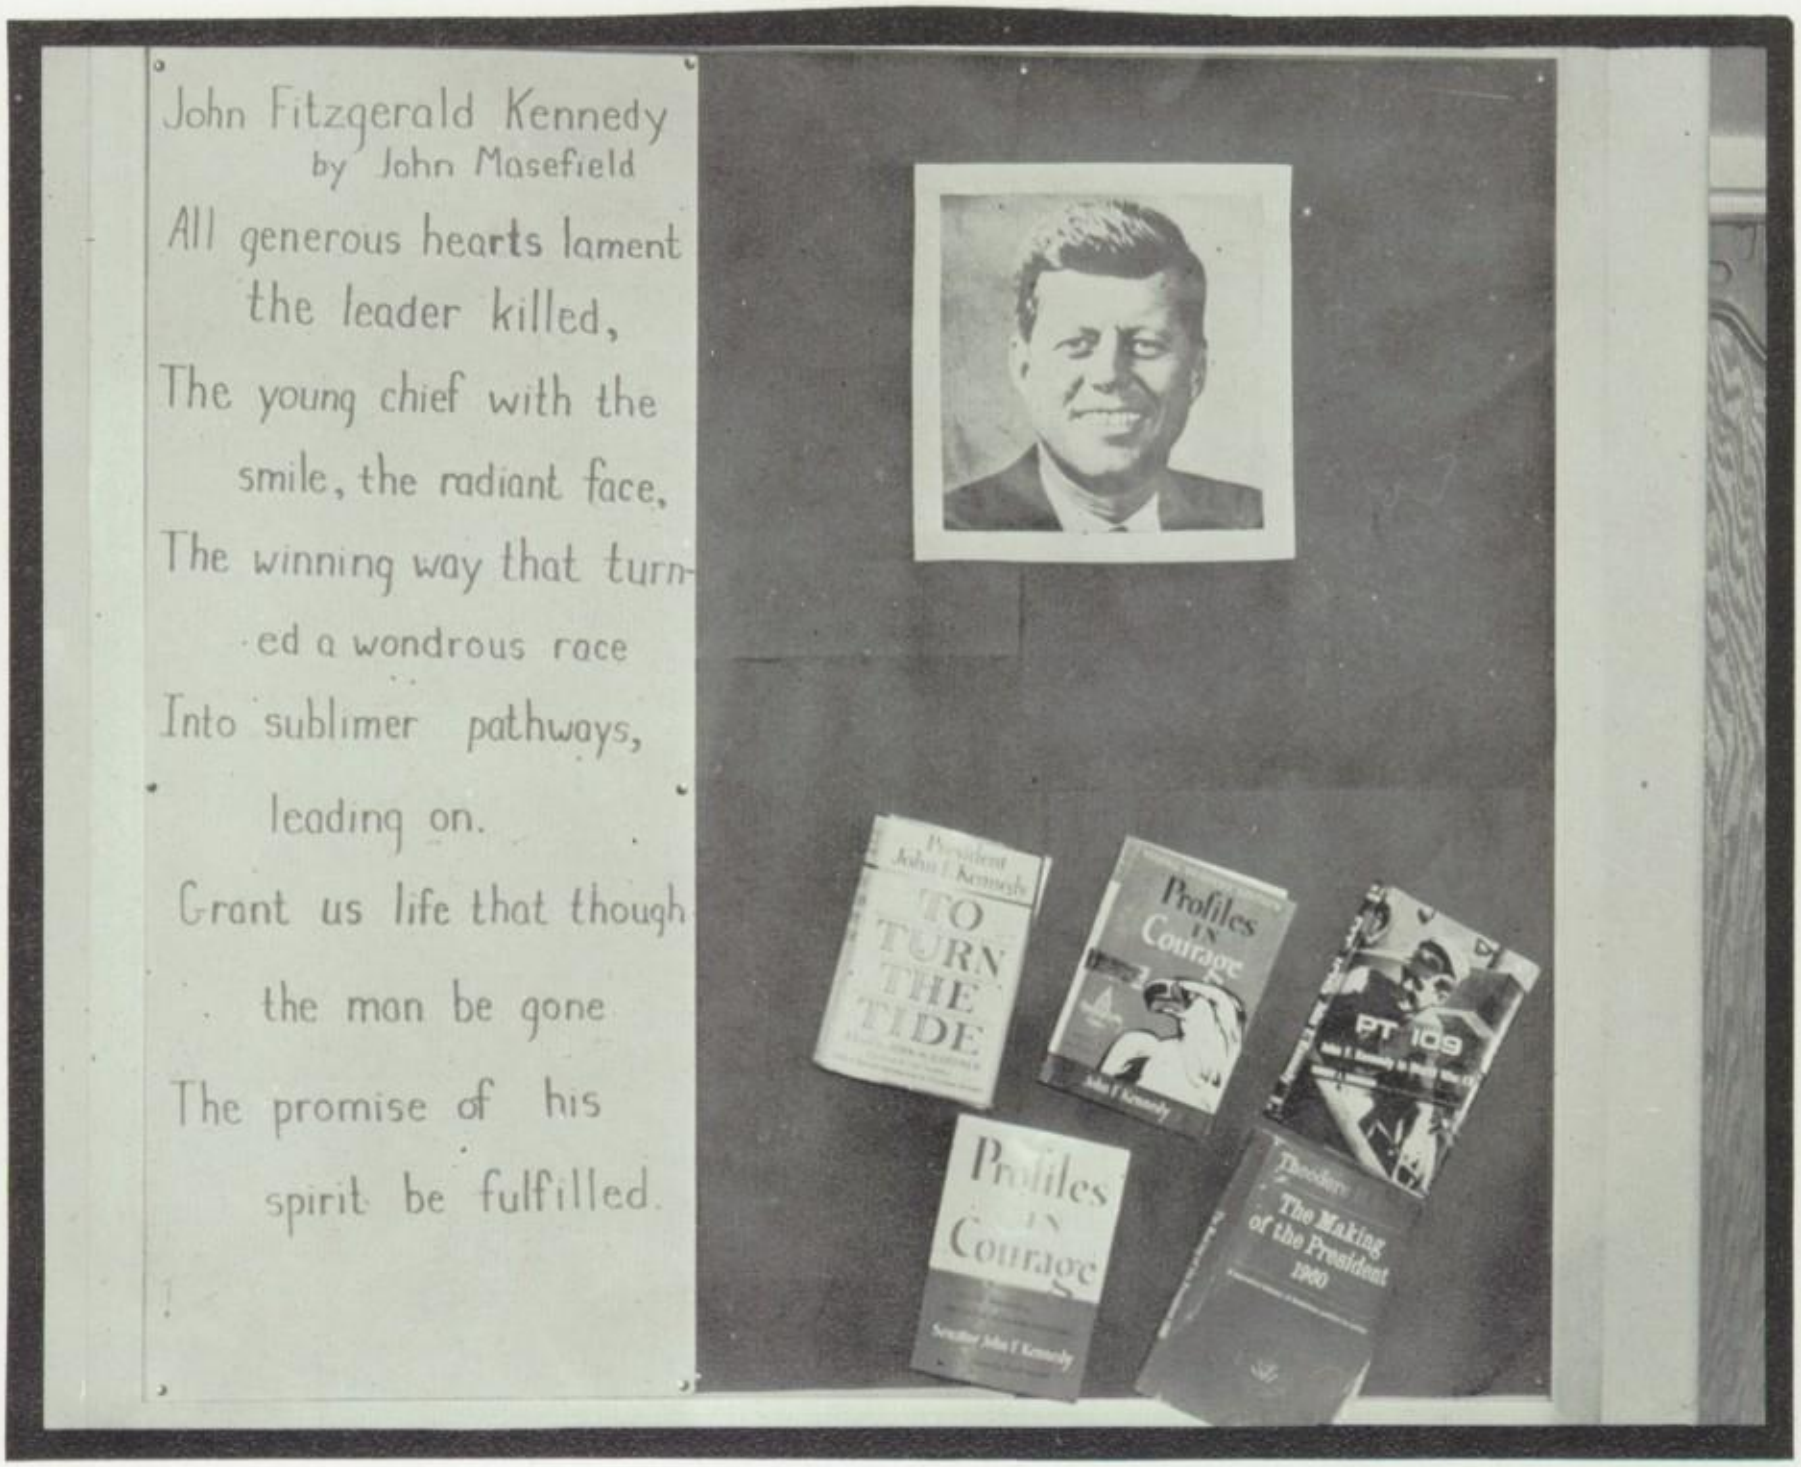
Around the world



After the tragic assassination of our President, John F. Kennedy, this bulletin board of tribute to him was displayed in the library. Framing a large portrait of the deceased leader were John Masefield's poem about the stricken hero and jackets of books written by the late President.

Events around the world constantly affect the lives of the students of 1963-1964. The death of the President, Britain's politics, United Nations meetings, and even the World Series influence our futures. International events are impressed upon our memories, instilled in our thoughts, and implanted in our lives. As citizens in America these things will be recalled and will influence our choices in this democratic nation.

World Events

September 16 . . Federation of Malaysia formed.
September 17 . . U.N. General Assembly opens its eighteenth session.

Around the school there are many events that we look forward to. We enjoy the vacations and the parties; we like the extracurricular activities and the assemblies; we even have fun in the classes. As students of 1963-1964 we will remember our school's first Hootenanny, a "building year" in sports, a hot dry autumn, and the special movies.

In addition to the school events that affect our little world, international occurrences often protrude into our personal lives. We will especially remember the shocking death of the President and its effect on the students of MCJHS.

One of the events that breaks the monotony of the school year is Mr. Tomb's coming to take pictures for the yearbook. Mr. Tomb adjusts his camera while Mrs. Edwards and Roberta Helman are giving directions for the majorette picture.

a COLORFUL year!

special events

The spectrum of events of the year at MCJHS were varied and colorful. From everyday happenings to special events, students added to the goings-on with remarks and attitudes typical of the average teen, - enriching the lives of all the members of the school. The students and the teachers - and the activities they participated in - blended together to make the COLORFUL YEAR. It is this mixing of ideas, of attitudes, and of opinions that forms the policy and the reputation of the school.

The school term 1963-1964 was colorful from the beginning to the end. From Opening Days through Christmas, through Final Assembly, school happenings were exciting and colorful. The "yellow" school buses that brought us to school daily, the "blue" days that we all experienced, the "red" letter days when we got our report cards, the "green" and inexperienced beginnings that we all encountered in our classes, and finally, the "purple" that designated rewards. Yes, 1964 was a COLORFUL YEAR!

These things were familiar at MCJHS:

Doing homework or scribbling class notes, yellow school pencils are seen in all rooms of the school.

The big yellow buses travel to and fro, carrying the students from their various homes to the school and back home again. These students are arriving for another school day.

The librarians are familiar with the bright yellow passes that they must stamp as each student enters and leaves the library.

YELLOW buses, passes, and pencils.

Viet Nam

bus meetings

Yellow is a color commonly seen around MCJHS. The typical yellow school pencil, a necessary possession of each student, is often seen in the library (a special report), in class (a quiz), or in shirt pockets between classes. The big yellow buses greet the students in the morning and carry them to school. They are there again in the evening, ready for the noise and jostling of the homeward trip. Also seen around the school is the familiar yellow pass. Going to the library or to make up a test, the student is required to carry a pass.

Around the world, we are reminded of this color as we think of the Mongolian race and the effect they have on our lives here at MCJHS. Trouble in the Asian countries, the wheat deal with Russia, and Communist Chinese disagreements - all effect our lives today.

There were BLUE days

Cold and rainy days were especially troublesome to those students who had classes in the outlying buildings of the school.

Many of our school days are blue; nothing seems to go right. On days when teachers are complaining it becomes even more miserable - it rains. Then there are those hectic days at the six weeks' end; tests follow tests and homework mounts. The "blue" times in lab periods and manual classes are frequent - there are mountains of equipment to clean and put away. When we all think that we can no longer stand the depression, the light comes through - we laugh at a joke or have a vacation.

Around the world we experience blue and depressing times, too. New skirmishes break out and tension mounts. Then when our leaders hold peace conferences, or we sign agreements such as the test-ban treaty, we can relax again.

Karen Smyers, Cheri De Gastro, Nancy Ferringer, and Janice Kaufman are cleaning their work area after a hectic cooking class.

These seniors are taking a manual dexterity test given by the Pennsylvania State Employment Agency.

and RED - letter ones.

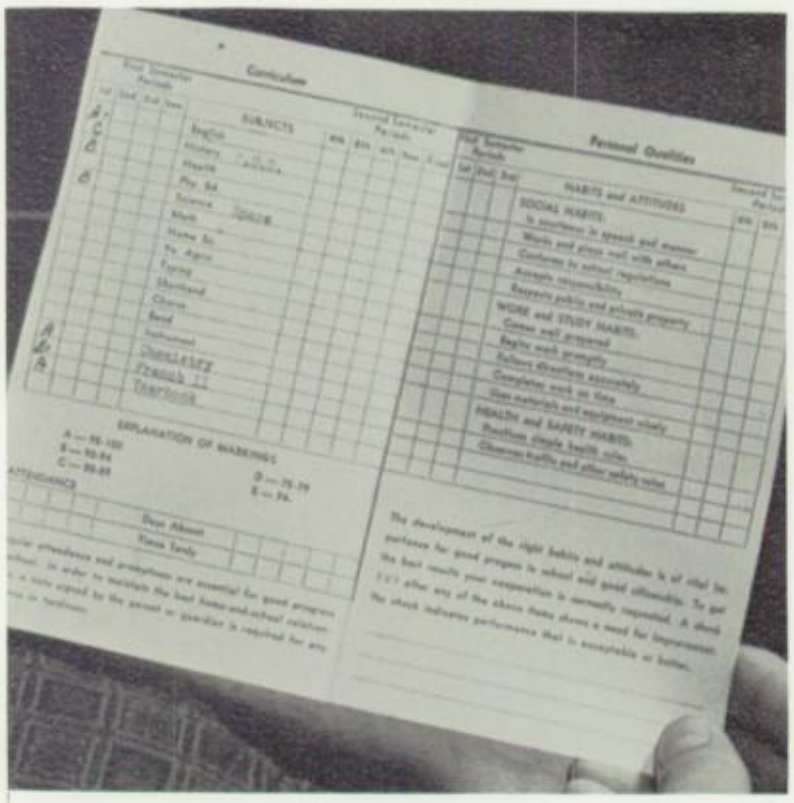
Honor Society

report cards

During the school year many red-letter days are spotlighted. At the end of each six-weeks' period the students receive their report cards and the honor roll is posted. Additional red-letter days include those days when we get the results of guidance and scholarship tests. Other such days are the Honor Society induction, the awards assembly, and the final assembly.

Around the world there are many red-letter days as cold war tension fluctuates. There are plunges into conflict and then there are peaks of cooperation - the red-letter days. We even have international organizations for world unity; the United Nations and its agencies are examples of global cooperation which bring about some red-letter days of world affairs.

Another red-letter day comes at the end of each six-weeks' period; the students receive their report cards.

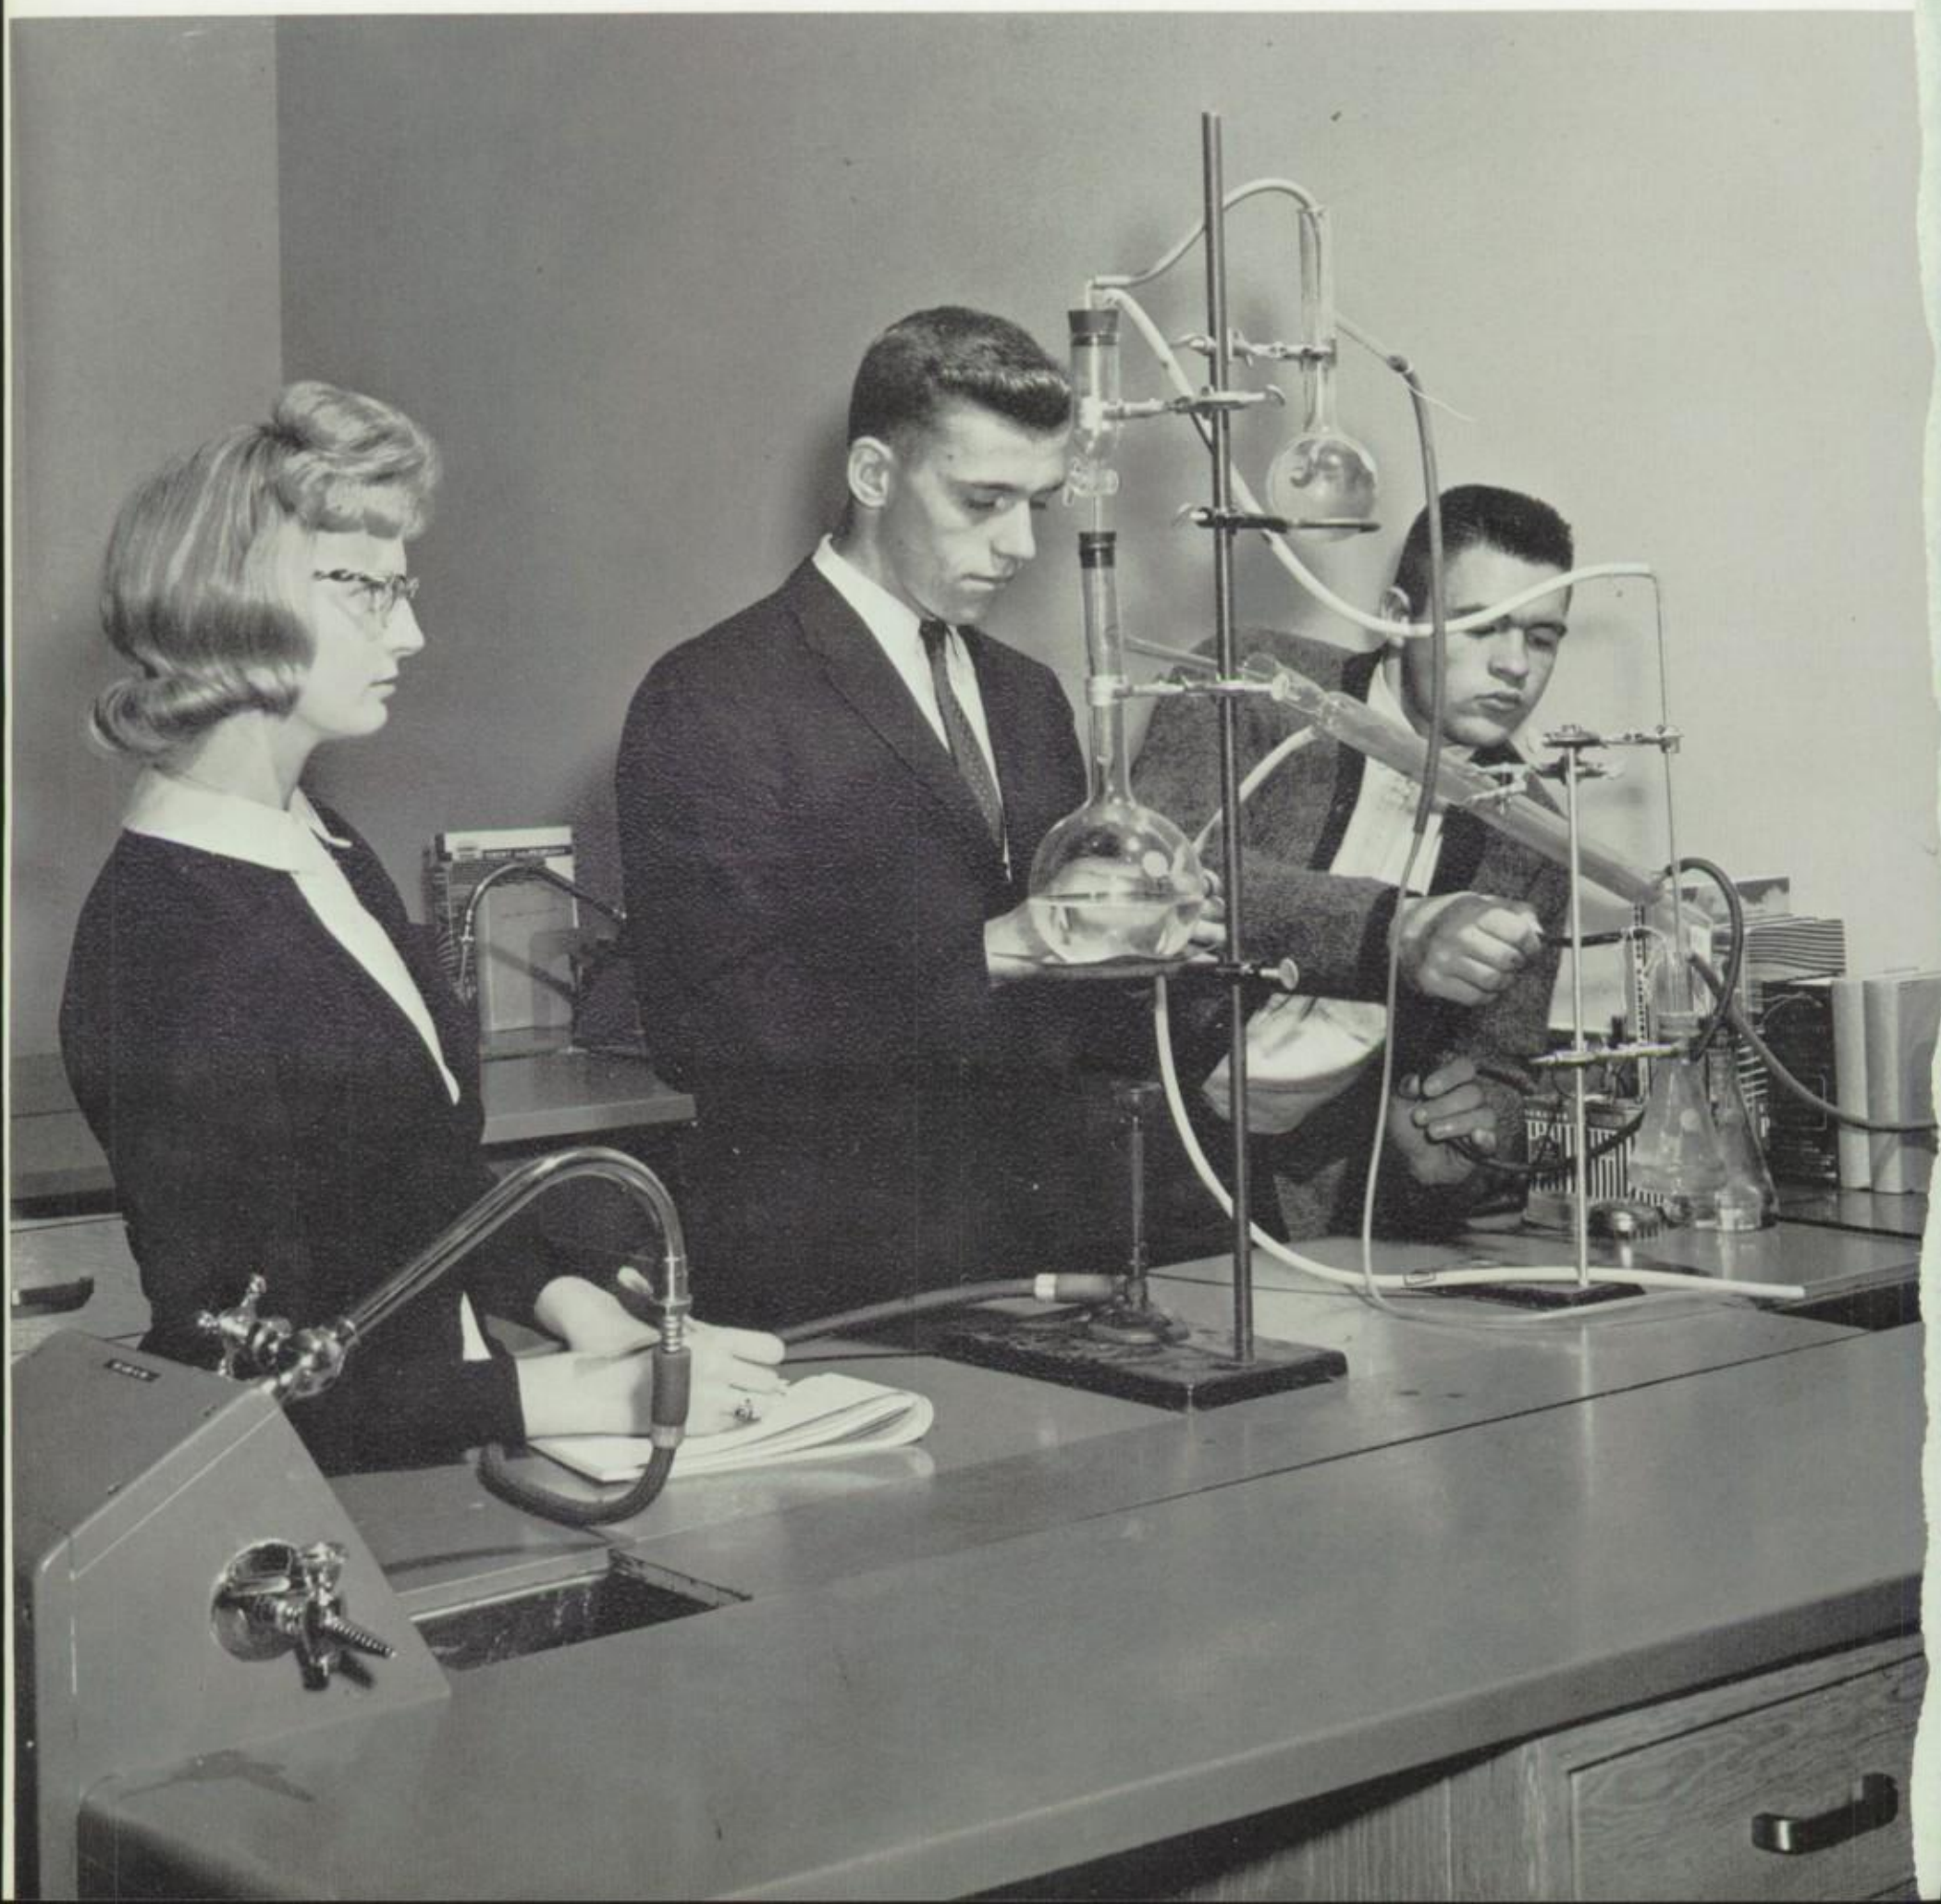


GREEN and inexperienced beginnings

experiments

Peace Corps

Aneta Braughler, Ron Gress, and Terry Miloser are just beginning to learn the "how" and the "why" of chemistry experiments.

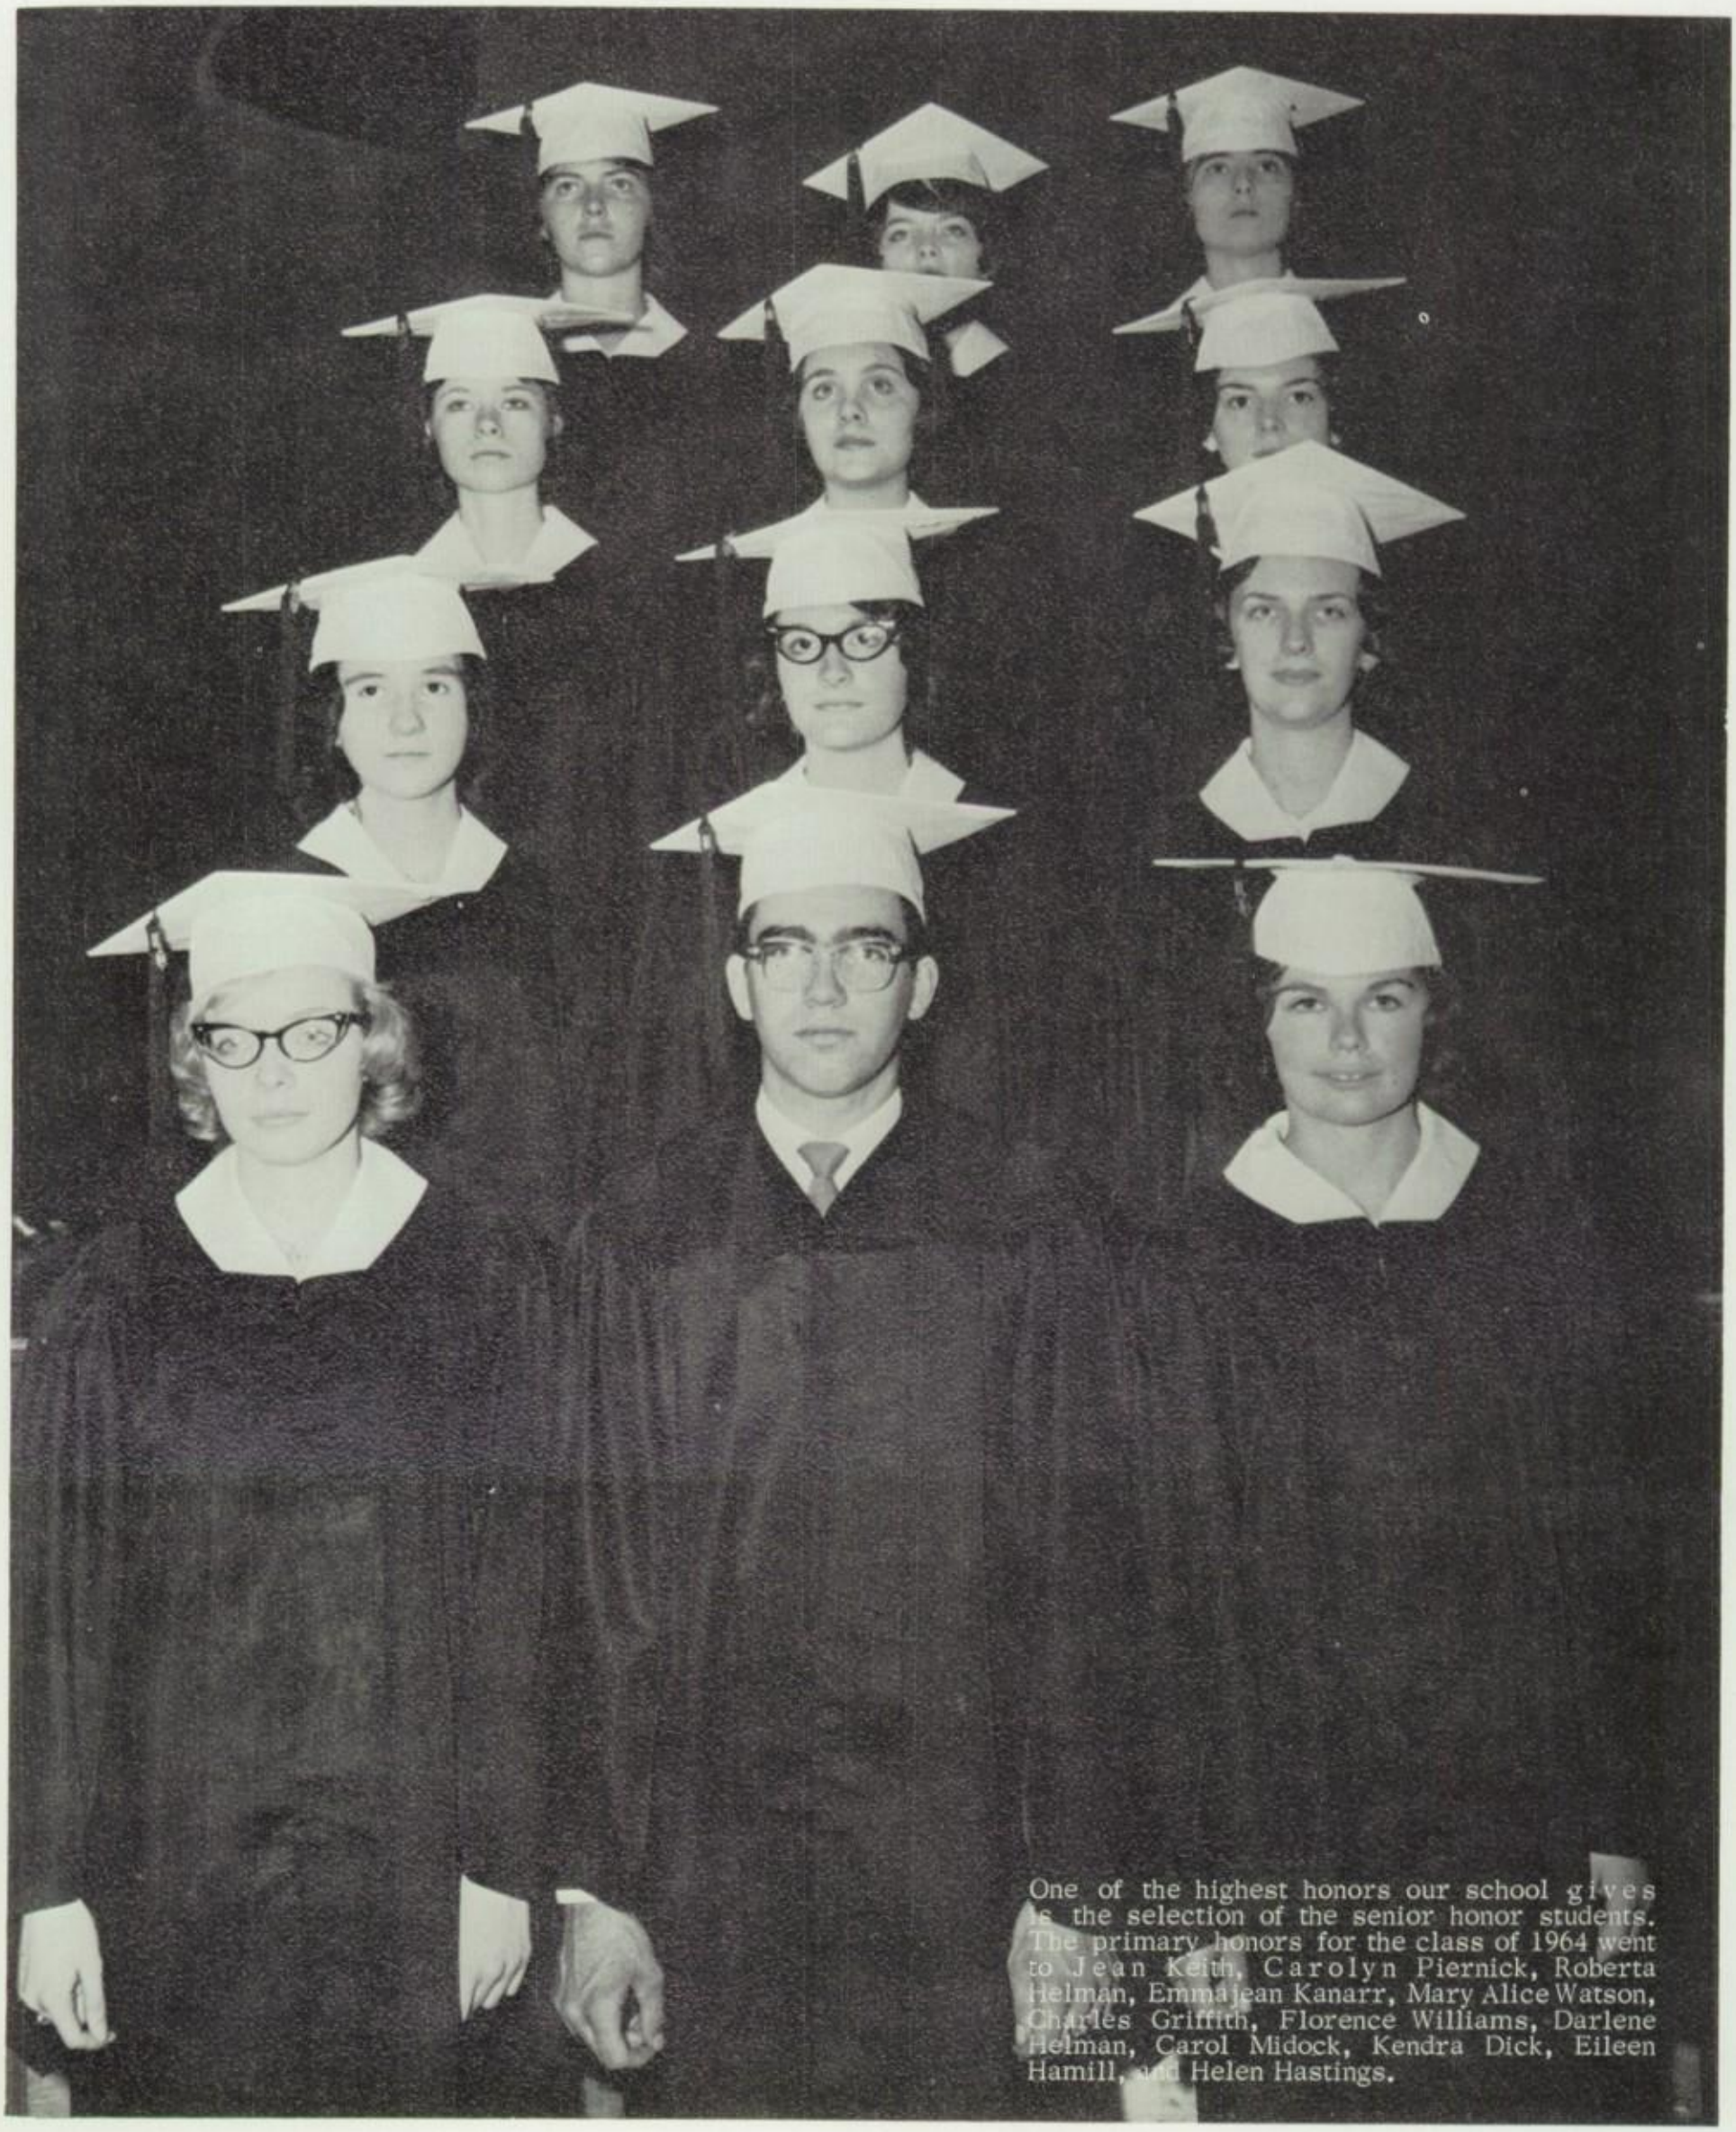


Our school year was one of many uncertain beginnings. The incoming seventh grade students were "green" and inexperienced in the rules and customs of MCJHS. Finding the way to class on time during the first week of school was an accomplishment. Green-hand chemists and shop students explored the various tools of their study, experimenting and working while they learned.

Likewise, many international organizations seem new and unsteady. The Peace Corps, the Alliance for Progress, the United Nations, and the other world peace programs are only beginnings; but to gain an end we must first begin. Inexperience may lead to failure, but it may also lead to success. We must always hope that we will profit by our mistakes in our classes here at MCJHS and that these studies will lead to international co-existence.

Inexperienced seventh grade boys learn many new skills in industrial arts class. Mr. Siar is showing Charles Wetzel, Roger McCracken, and Tom Smith how to stain wood.

A typical scene at the beginning of school is one of seventh grade boys and girls who are confused about their schedules and lost in the halls.



One of the highest honors our school gives is the selection of the senior honor students. The primary honors for the class of 1964 went to Jean Keith, Carolyn Piernick, Roberta Helman, Emmajean Kanarr, Mary Alice Watson, Charles Griffith, Florence Williams, Darlene Helman, Carol Midock, Kendra Dick, Eileen Hamill, and Helen Hastings.

led to the PURPLE of awards!

Although we started the year with uncertainty, we end with honors and awards. We'll remember final assembly when many students received rewards for excellence they had exhibited in several branches of school life. There are academic awards, sports' trophies, commercial certificates and good citizenship honors given. In fact, every phase of well-rounded learning - from physical coordination to musical skill - is recognized as a vital part of education at MCJHS.

Throughout the world with its trials and troubles, wars and riots, we see rewards mounting. We hear of many famous awards being given; Nobel Prizes, Oscars, and Olympic cups are a few. Everybody cannot be a notable success, but people all over the earth are reaping the rewards of happiness and satisfaction; each person can at least attain these two prizes if only he seeks them.

The Good Manner's Award, given each year by the Student Council, is presented to two seniors and two underclassmen. JoAnn Pino presents the underclassmen award to Edward Moore.

Each year the students in the commercial department who excel in typing and shorthand receive awards for their achievements.

Yes! It was a COLORFUL year!

We students of 1963-1964 will long remember this school year. We will remember the assemblies, the sports events, and the classes. We still remember the fun we have had with the friends we have known here at MCJHS.

World-wide events also captured our memories and affected our lives. Looking back at our high school days we will recall the COLORFUL YEAR.

One of the events that drew the students and teachers of MCJHS closer was the yearbook staff's serving coffee and doughnuts at a faculty meeting.

Our instructors remained "true blue" throughout the year. They are dedicated people — loyal to their profession as well as to us students. Each teacher gives his best, not only in class, but also as a friend and advisor to the teens of MCJHS.

Instructors

This individual, quite familiar to every Marion Center student, is Mr. William A. McCreery, our supervising principal. Even as he leaves the high school, he takes with him the responsibilities of supervising our educational system.

Today the Centerama is a fascinating book to the student. Tomorrow it will be a treasury of memories.

Here are the buildings, the teachers, the boys and girls, and the activities of 1963-64.

Here is the farmer, the doctor, the teacher, the mechanic, the statesman, the businessman, the scientist - the rich, the famous, the fine citizen - as a high school student.

Where will high school days take you?

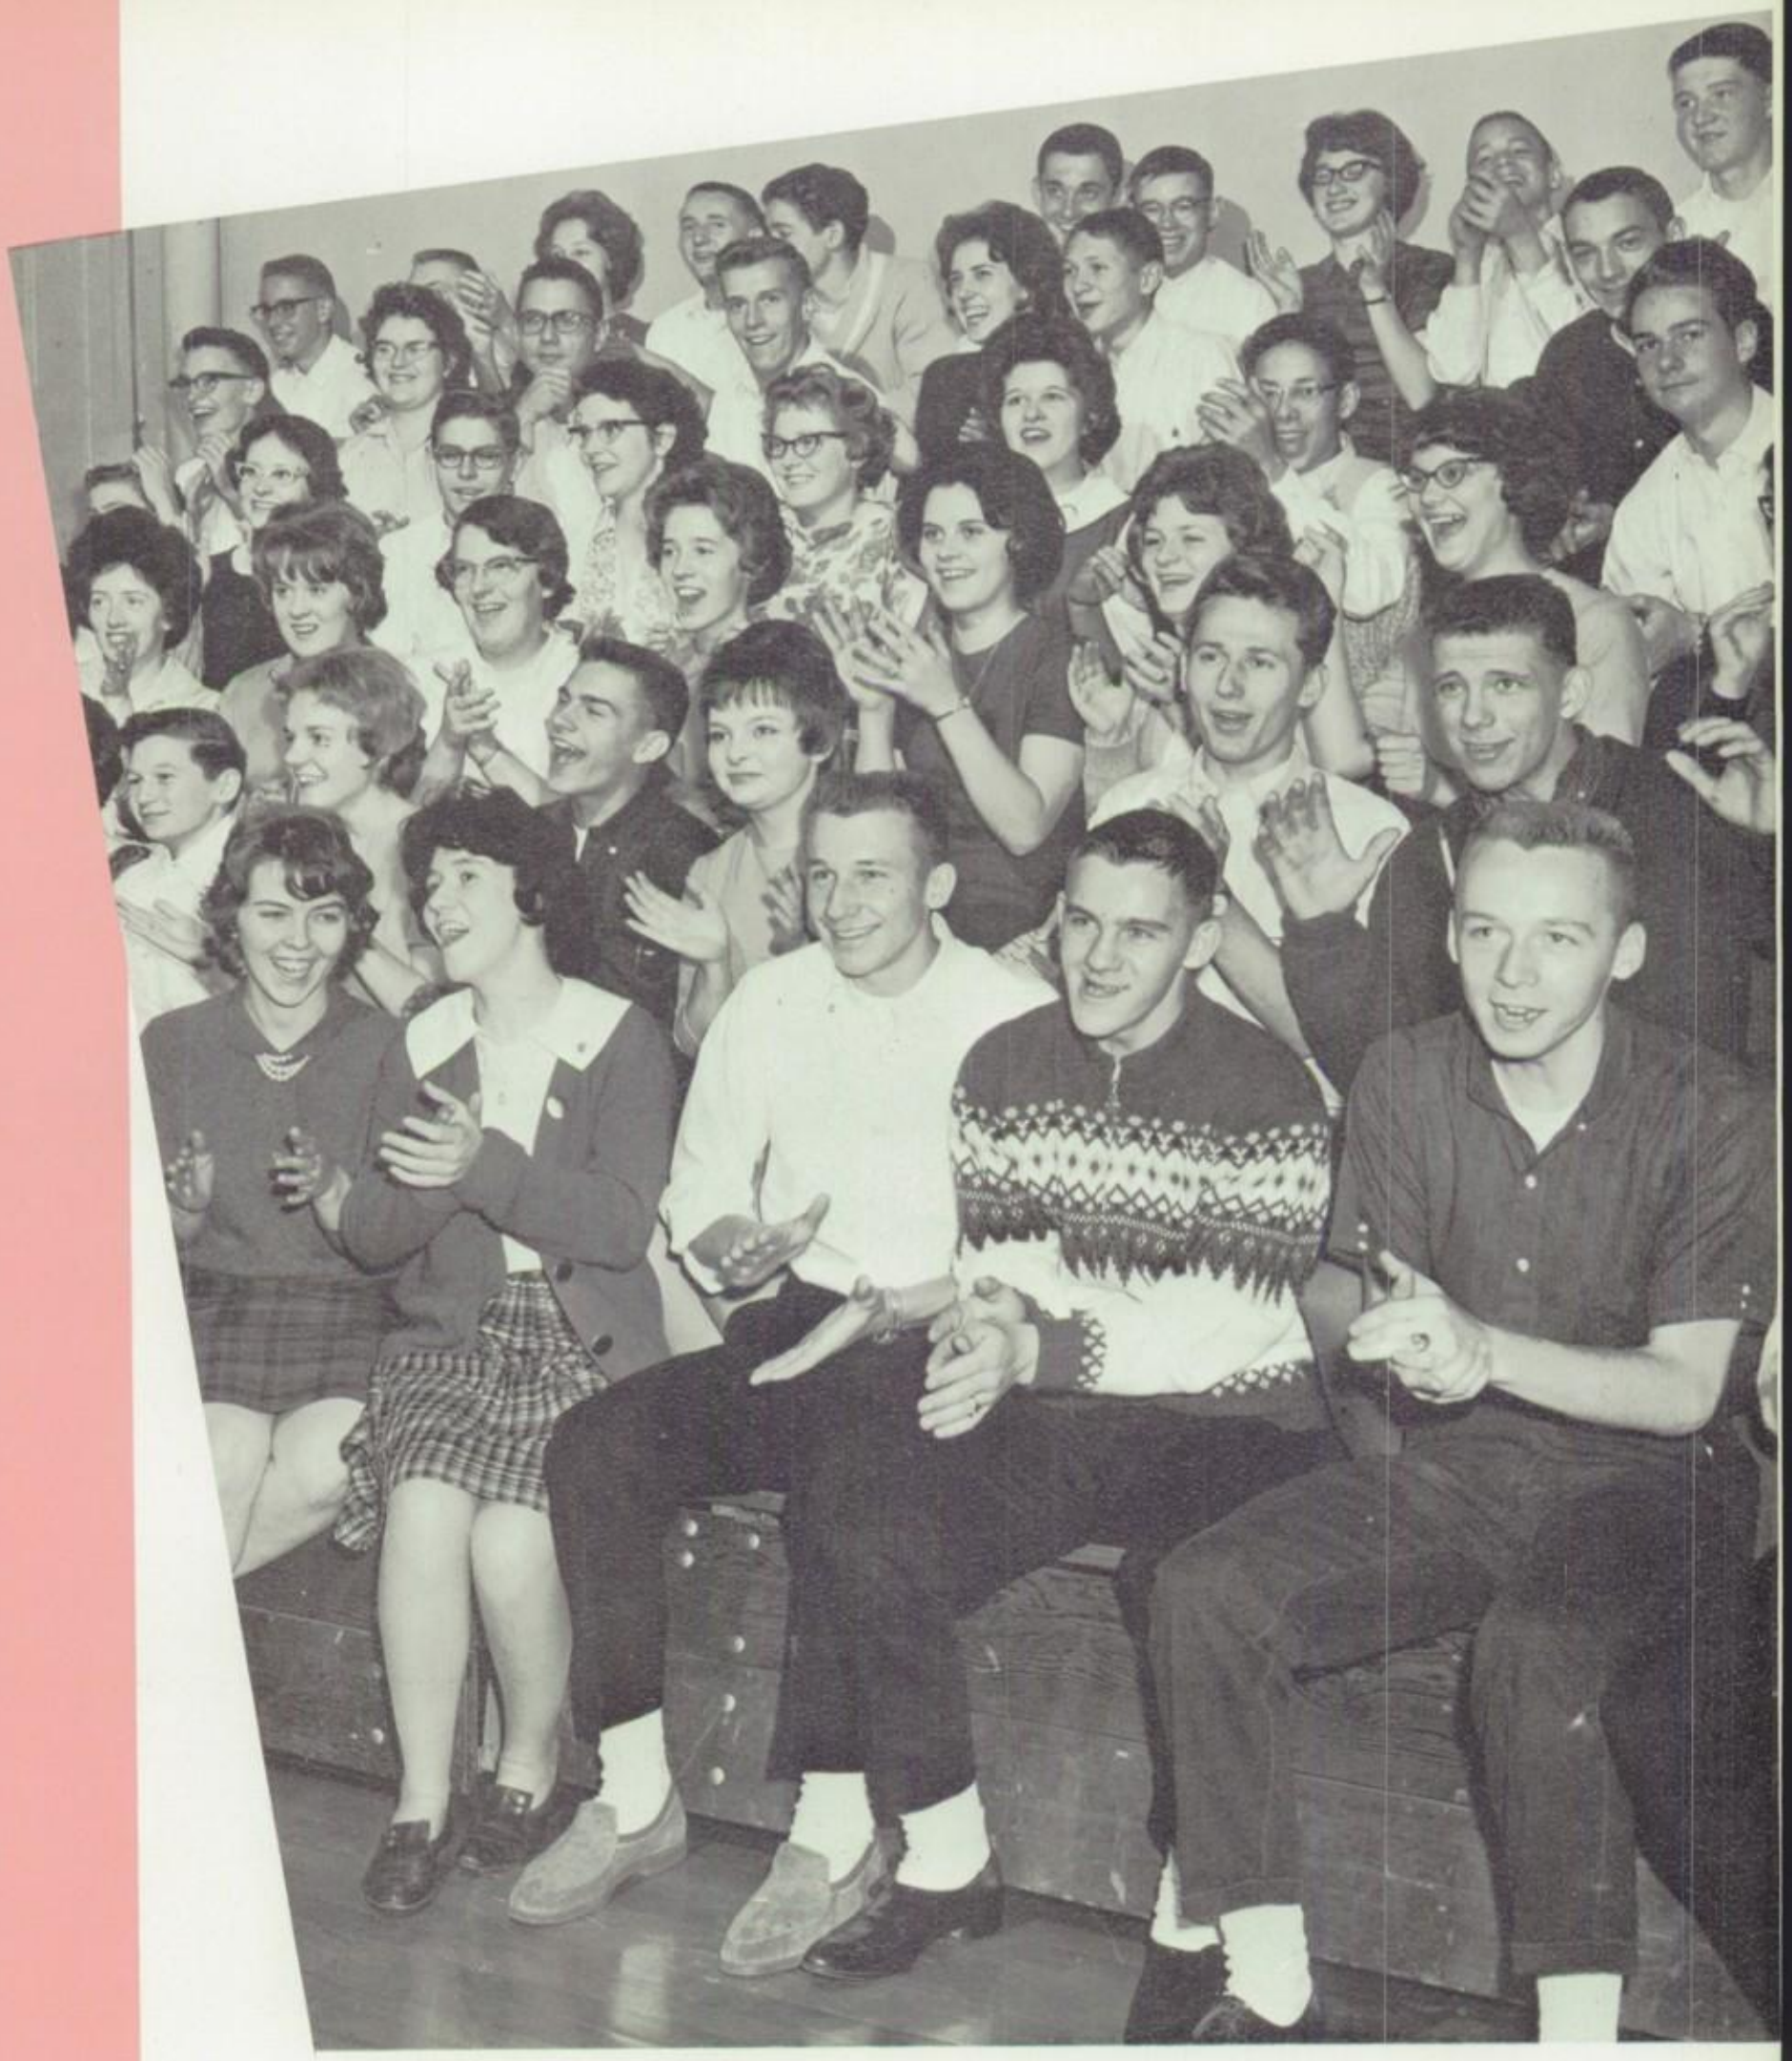
The Mixed Chorus under the direction of Mrs. Love sings "Ezekiel Saw de Wheel," a Negro spiritual, during the Spring Concert.



Pep and enthusiasm led to a closer unity at MCJHS. During the sports' season the students grow close — on the teams as they work together and in the bleachers as they cheer together.

Sports

Basketball

Coach McFarlane discusses plans for a future game with his two student managers, Jim Taccone and Ron Fisher. These boys take care of the equipment, keep score, and relieve the coach of many other minor duties.

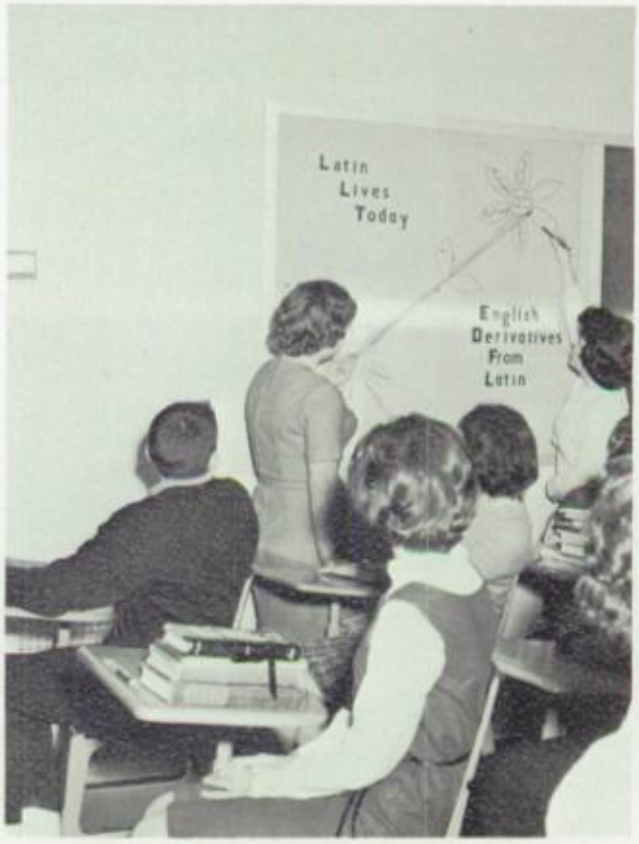
Skill in typing comes from hours of concentration and practice. This first year typing class is going through one of its daily drills.



These students from Mrs. McQuiston's Latin class finish a bulletin board showing English words derived from Latin.

This French class is making use of the language laboratory. By this means a native French speaker first pronounces the words, and then the students repeat them.

"Why did the elephant wear red tennis shoes? 'Cause his blue ones were in the wash."
Tom Hetrick, sophomore class treasurer, tells Joseph Canale, vice president; Diane Wells, secretary; and Beth Gibbon, president, an elephant joke-another of this year's many fads.

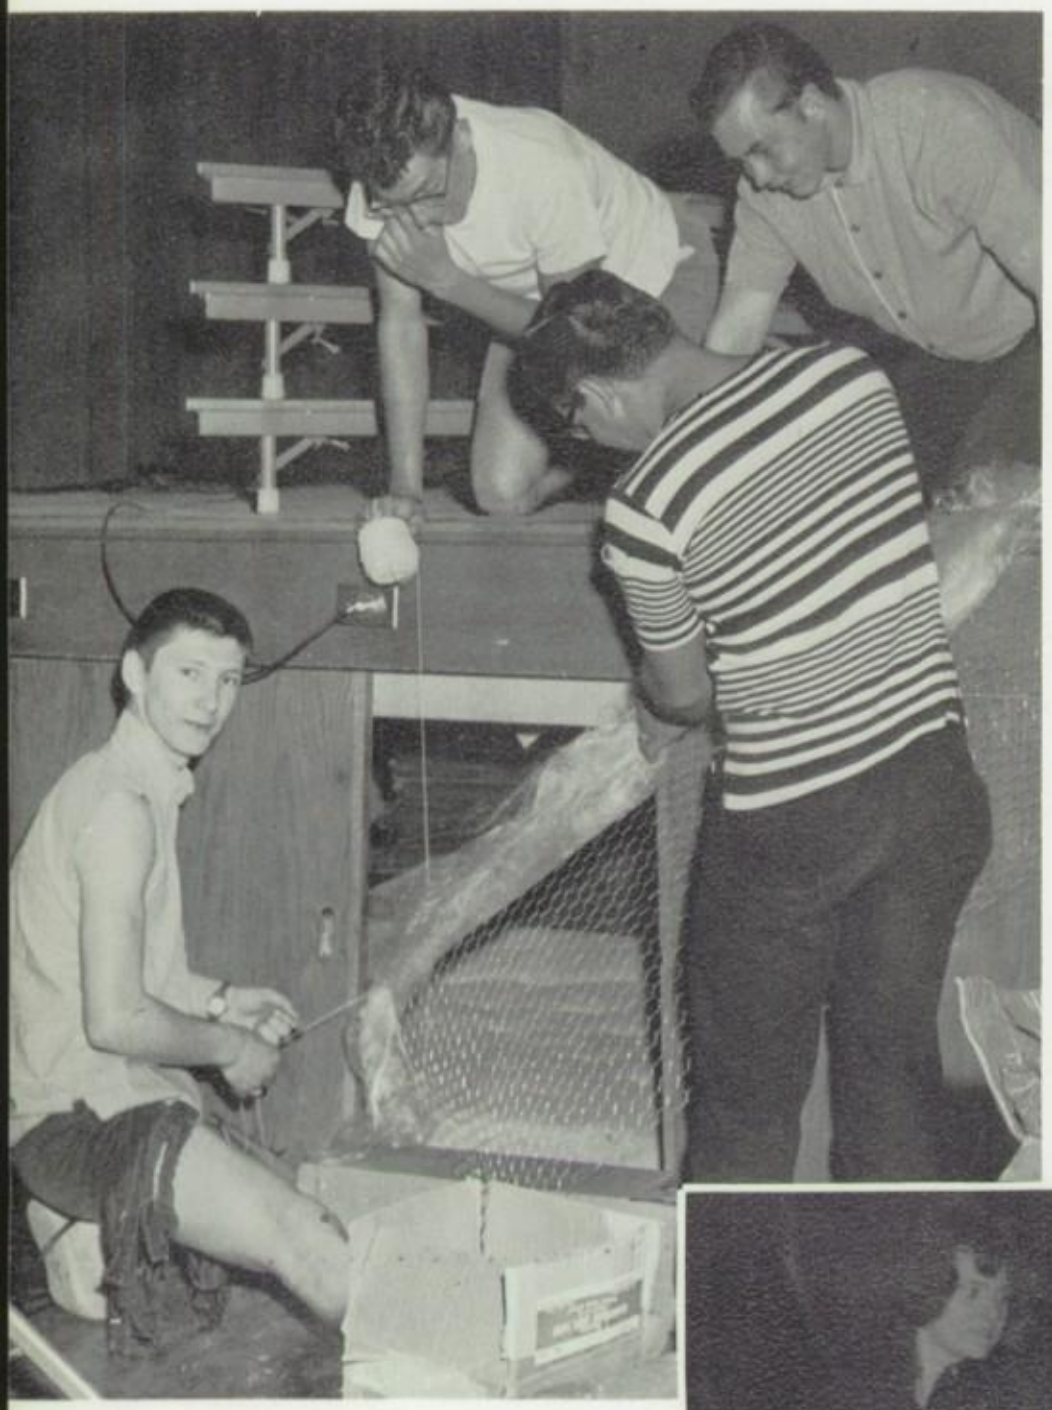
This highlight from the junior play shows Bob Dilts searching frantically for a pair of missing trousers. The production, entitled We Shook The Family Tree, was presented in three hilarious acts.

In this scene from the junior play, Bob Dilts (Bobby Dolson) listens as Viola Fisher (Mrs. Dolson) tells him his sister is going to the prom with a boy who wears "knickers."

In the final scene of the junior play, Emmy Nesbit and Ted Williams leave for the prom. Looking on are Don McGinnis, Viola Fisher, Jeral Simpson, and Sherry Corosu.

A great deal of credit is due to everyone connected with the dramatic production of We Shook The Family Tree. Emmy Nesbit, Ted Williams, Bob Dilts, Sherry Corosu, Jeral Simpson, Don McGinnis, Viola Fisher, Carol Loughry, Jean Miller, Bob Fairman, Beverly Larson, and Paula Pounds comprised the cast. The play was directed by Miss Judith Skubis.

Our hard work



These junior boys are beginning to put up the stage decorations for the prom. Richard Skoff, Gerry Gett, Bob Plavi, and Larry Haldin are fastening colored material to wire to form a rainbow.

Patty Pampe, Paula Pounds, Helen Pfeiffer, and Karen Oberlin hang crepe paper on wires to form the ceiling for the prom.

Many couples spend a delightful evening dancing to the music of Ken Maurey's Orchestra at the Junior - Senior Prom.

After collecting the tickets at the door, these ushers take time out to enjoy the refreshments.

by good times.

Keith McCauley and his date watch other couples glide across the dance floor as they pause for refreshments.

Bob Fairman, Emmy Nesbit, and Jeral Simpson pause during a refreshment break to watch the other couples dance.

These couples chat together at their prom tables during a brief interlude.

In this seventh grade science class, Marjorie Gahagan, Diane Glasser, Mary Helen Shank, Joe Hodak, Delores Shankle, and Paul Lingenfelter are giving demonstrations on musical instruments.

In this eighth grade history class, the students are participating in a debate. Jimmy Glover is giving his opinion on civic improvements to the opposing side.

The Marion Center election board, consisting of Mrs. Marlin Ressler, Mrs. Harold Lightcap, Mr. Richard Philippi, and Mrs. Thomas Doyle, was visited on election day by Mrs. Mikesell's Pennsylvania history class.

This year the ninth grade English classes reenacted scenes from Great Expectations. Sherran Allshouse has made the wedding cake representing the one which was kept by Miss Havisham for 20 years.

Autographs

Grand Fenwick has won the war with the United States! The leaders of that tiny country can't believe it, but Tully Bascom knew it would happen all along. Truth always triumphs.

"The Mouse That Roared,"

The cast of the senior play includes: Mary Alice Watson, Keith McCauley, Dan Rice, Ron Marshall, Tom Weaver, Charles Griffith, Emmajean Kanarr, Dan Smith, Roger Steele, Sam Elkin, Larry Stenman, Brady Rising, John Wetzel, Allan Kinter, Barry Stear, Linda Doyle, Sandy Doty, Carol Ann Foose, Kathy Baker, Betty Fink, Sharon Demboskey, Roberta Helman, Carol Midock, Barbara Ryen, Eileen Hamill, Mary Lee Black, Bonnie Stover, Rita Cornman, Sue Vedder, Orlin Wells, Jean Keith, Mieke Vuyk, and Roy Williams.
The play was directed by Mr. Miller and Miss Skubis. Others who helped in the production were: Mr. Palmer, Kendra Dick, Joanne Allshouse, Paul Hollman, Jim Berkey, and Fred Fairman.

Vesper Services,

Caps and gowns have arrived and seniors in this homeroom hurry to inspect the long awaited treasures.

Vesper service was held May 31, 1964, by interested churches. The participating ministers are Rev. Martin Kaufman, invocation; Rev. Arthur Kaufman, prayer and benediction; Rev. Roy Bickley, sermon; and Rev. William Cornell, scripture.

and Commencement—

Vincent Receski, the senior class president, delivers his welcome speech for the commencement exercises.

Carolyn Piernick, the second honor student, receives her diploma from Mr. McCreery, the supervising principal. Mr. Lingenfelter, principal, looks on.

The commencement exercises begin with the seniors marching in to the familiar strains of "Pomp and Circumstance."

This year Roberta Helman received the Raymond Munnell Memorial Scholarship Award. It is given annually to the applicant with the highest scholastic record who is entering the teaching profession.

During the commencement exercises this spring, Dr. Wesley N. Haines spoke to the graduates. The speech was entitled "For the Rest of Your Life."

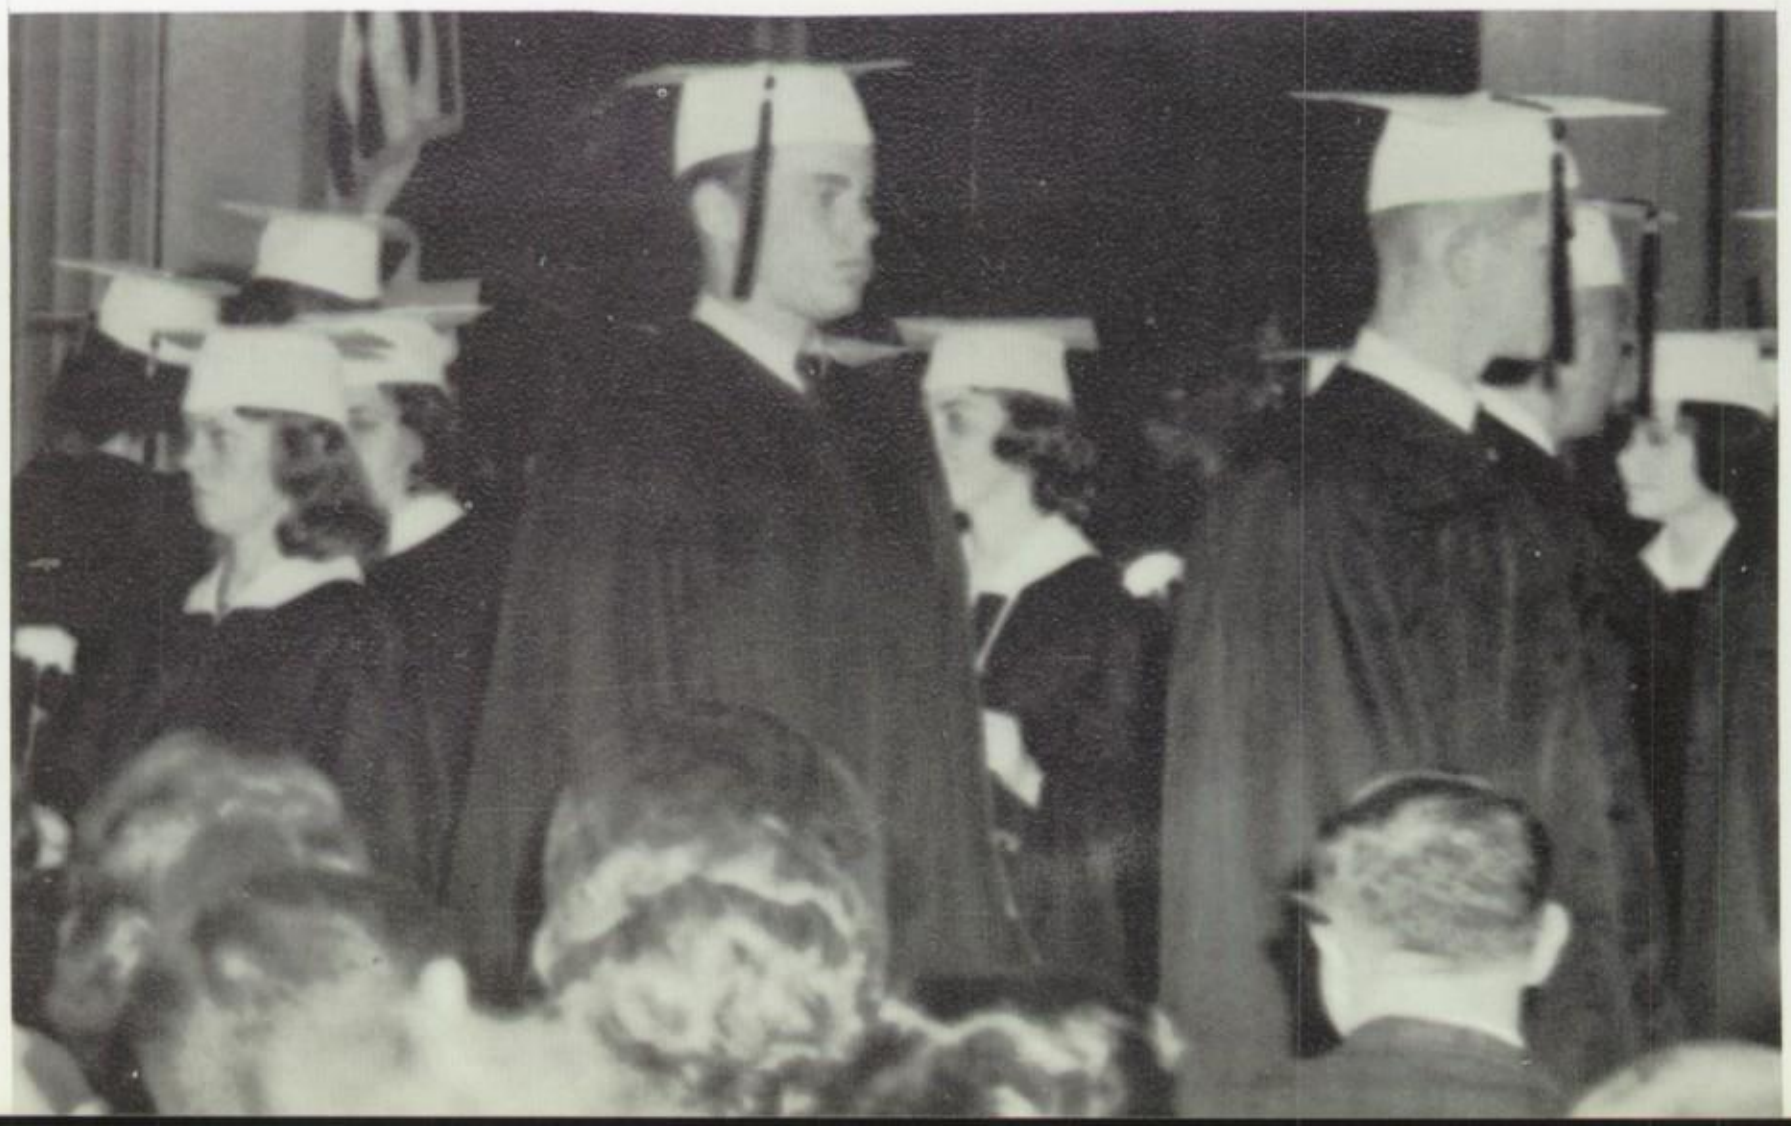
Mieke Vuyk was the recipient of a scholarship for girls given by the Delta Kappa Gamma. Here Miss Hamil and Mrs. Ross, two members of the organization, congratulate Mieke.

We will remember always

The farewell assembly brings back both amusing and sorrowful memories. These seniors are enjoying some of the more humorous incidents recalled by a few of their classmates.

Jean Keith, the first honor student, received the D.A.R. Award this year. Mrs. Montgomery presented the award to Jean.

Their faces portray mixed emotions as these seniors march from the gym in the flower parade at the end of the farewell assembly.



Seniors 1964 —

Wrestling members receiving letters from Mr. Butler are Joe Hill, Joe Kovach, Ronald Gress.
